“All children should have the opportunity of a brilliant early education, no matter who they are, where they’re from or how much their parents earn.

Our new school-based nurseries will provide thousands of additional places where they are needed most, plugging historic gaps and making sure geography is no barrier to high quality childcare.”

- Bridget Phillipson, Education Secretary

Metric helps Cherry Tree Nurseries create a beautiful and warm nurturing space

Cherry Tree wanted to achieve a natural approach to learning, with clear learning areas and storage to include, a cosy nook with book storage, a sleep area with bedding, investigative space, role play, arts and crafts with tables and chairs at different heights with safety arms for babies and toddlers to develop independence as they grow.

We supplied bespoke rugs in the cherry red theme of the nursery with safety heavy rubber edging and a mobile cloakroom unit with ease of access for parents dropping off in the morning.

Cherry Tree Nurseries

case study

This beautiful space allows a warm and nurturing environment making the most of the natural light in the room to not over stimulate, whilst encouraging freedom to explore and independence. The loose furniture encourages freedom to move the furniture based on the everchanging needs of learning and ability.

“Opening a new baby unit in the nursery can be daunting. However, working with Caroline [Izard] at Metric made it easier. Her knowledge of the furniture and equipment needed, alongside a visual mock-up of how the room would look, really helped. It stopped us from over-buying items because we had the precise measurements of the room.” - Ms Harvey Kalsi, Nursery Director - Cherry Tree Nurseries

Caroline, our Metric education expert, has specialised in creating enabling environments for the Early Years Sector throughout her career, with EYFS holding a special place in her heart after studying her NNEB when she left school.

This has given her the perfect first-hand experience to fully guide and support with projects that can feel overwhelming, ready for Ofsted
